

Improvement of Quality of Gynecologic Cancer Care in West Georgia

Effective fight against malignant disease (including gynecologic) remains a public health challenge of the 21st century for global world as well for Georgia and especially in regions where the population has low geographical accessibility to modern methods of prevention, early detection and treatment of the cancer disease.

To address the above-mentioned problem, Caritas Czech Republic starts a new project in support to Georgian Medical Holding to improve the quality of oncogynecological services in Samegrelo-Zemo Svaneti and Ajara regions. The project encompasses support of improvement of technical capacities of the state-owned large hospitals in region as well as increase skills for medical professionals.
